About Katie Korotzer

A native of the South, Katie Korotzer has called the San Francisco Bay Area home for over two decades. She has studied and practiced art throughout her life; her contemporary expressionist work reflects her ongoing exploration of what it means to integrate her experience of these two very different places. Katie creates her large scale paintings and mixed media collages from her studio in Sausalito, California and regularly exhibits her work in galleries and group shows. Her work has won awards and recognition and is featured in many private collections.
